

Developing Feng Shui Vision

FSSone is growing quickly. Over the past year, we have traveled all over New England working with schools, businesses, hospitals, homes. We have applied Feng Shui to basement apartments and high rise apartment buildings, real estate offices, yoga studios and hospitals.

Our small classes and presentations have been a success. Maybe you missed Using Crystals and Feng Shui for Healing class in February with Francesca Piazza? She was wonderful and will be back to teach us about crystal energy in the fall. Feng Shui Services of New England will be represented at the Natural Living Expo again in 2016.

Look for us in November 12-13 in Marlboro, MA.

Note from owner and principal consultant JPR

Growing a business and working as a nurse is keeping me busy along with learning as much as possible about my passion for Feng Shui. Feng Shui is many centuries old-so I have lots of learning to catch up on! Currently, I am a student in the two-year His Holiness Grandmaster Lin Yun Feng Shui Certification Program® at Lin Yun Temple learning "to transmit the most authentic Black Sect Esoteric Buddhism Feng Shui theories...". All this is to deepen and expand my Feng Shui vision. I cannot shut my Feng Shui eyes! Follow me on my Facebook page at Feng Shui Services of New England as I post my observation in the world of Feng Shui. My favorite is the license plates that share positive messages!

Testimonials

"I want to thank you so much for working with me on my home. I see things opening up in different sectors. Sending you pix I have, just because I am so proud of my home and grateful for your help." - R. M. 2015

"It's been almost 2 years since you came to my home for my consultation and next month will be two years since I've been living in my smaller bedroom [closer to front door]. In the past two years, a lot has happened. I've started a new job that has allowed me to travel and meet lots of great people. I have excellent benefits and have received wonderful pay increases on top of that. I joined CrossFit and have been feeling stronger in my own skin. I've met a young man who I enjoy spending time with and I'm hoping one day to be in a committed relationship with. (I think the red handbag helped. I got it in June, and met him not long after. But we only just started talking around the holidays.) And FINALLY, I am able to realistically begin the search for a home of my own!" - Carla L. 2016

Signs and Symbols: Using Feng Shui vision to see what is around you

In the book, Move Your Stuff, Change Your Life, Karen Rauch Carter quotes Barry Gordon, a Feng Shui consultant and physicist, "Every thing, every action is intentional, sometimes, conscious, sometimes unconscious. Feng Shui brings the unconscious in our environment back into our conscious. That brings the beliefs and feelings back into conscious. [From here] we have a choice and can create our universe consciously". In other words, our environment- where we live and work affects us in every way and we have the power to change our immediate environment.

Changing our environment or surroundings means seeing, REALLY seeing what is around us! We encircle ourselves with objects that can actually affect how we think and feel. But the question is, does what is around us match our intention? The real life examples below, demonstrate how things in our environment send a different message than what is intended.

A Feng Shui consultant has "Feng Shui vision" that evaluates from an energetic perspective, first, where the stuck places might be and, second, how the negative energy is affecting the people that live and work in the space. A client, *Kerri, wanted to have a more time for her and her husband. She stated, her family visited often and stayed longer than she desired. An unusual finding in her home was the many mismatched upholstered chairs that cluttered the living room- the family gathering place. When she was asked about the chairs, Kerri revealed how each chair was designated for a specific family member that visited often. She immediately saw that having comfortable chairs encouraged lingering and this did not correspond with her desire to have shorter family visits. The solution, without having to mention to family members that, although she loved her family, she was wanting more personal time with her husband, was to simply to remove the 'comfy' chairs and replace them with temporary 'comfy' folding chairs which could be stored when not used; leaving space and time for her and her husband to relax. Now, with the minor Feng Shui adjustment, Linda and her husband can fully enjoying their home and fully enjoy (shorter) family visits!

A broken grandfather clock symbolizes energy that is 'stuck in time' and affects every aspect of the home, especially, the energy in the space where it is located. *Linda requested Feng Shui help for a home she was selling. It was on the market for over a year and had not even a single viewing. She was eager to sell it and knew something was wrong with the energy. Taking two steps into the foyer it became apparent what the problem was- a damaged grandfather clock left by the previous owner. This was the AHA moment for Linda-realizing the broken clock was a hindrance to prospective buyers wanting to start fresh and and move forward. Simply removing the clock restored the balance of energy. Yes, sometimes it is that simple! The house was sold within weeks of removing the grandfather clock!

Now it is your turn. Look and see, REALLY see what is around you! If you want expert eyes, call us for a home or business consultation- and say you have read the newsletter!

Question and Answer

What does Namaste mean?

I have been asked this question many times. Namaste is both a Hindu greeting and custom. According to my friend and Sherpa guide, Pem Sherpa who guided our group through Nepal, it means "the light in me sees the light in you." In Nepal it is often spoken as a universal, yet respectful, greeting with a slight bow and hands pressed together, palms touching and fingers pointing upwards, thumbs close to the chest. Namaste can be spoken without the mudra (hand gesture) or with just the mudra. I use it as the complementary closing for letters and emails-appreciating and honoring the person who takes time to read the information sent.
